General Election 2024

On Thursday 4th July 2024 there will be a general election.

A general election is a national vote held to elect Members of Parliament (MPs) to the House of Commons. Voters across the country choose representatives from different political parties to form the government and represent their constituencies in Parliament.

Most MPs belong to a party. A party is a group of people who share similar beliefs about how the country should be run. Before a general election, leaders from the different parties share manifestos outlining what they would do if they won, take part in debates and answer questions from members of the public.

The leader of the largest party after the general election becomes the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister is responsible for all of the decisions that the government makes.

General elections form a central part of British democracy.
